AN UNUSUAL JOB

Four British women have been chosen among 6,000 applicants for a job in a post office in a rather small island in Antarctica. Not only does it lack tap water, but it also endures temperatures below zero and is the home of a colony of penguins.

The women will be in charge of running the post office, the gift-shop and the museum as well as tracking the penguins and registering their number. They will spend five months on the island starting in November. (83 words)
