Rioja Alavesa Wines

RIOJA ALAVESA

Die Region Rioja Alavesa liegt im Süden des spanischen Baskenlandes, gesäumt von der atemberaubenden Bergkette Sierra de Cantabria im Norden und dem Fluss Ebro im Süden.

Mit seinem atlantisch-mediterranen Mikroklima ist die Region Rioja Alavesa ein Garant für viel Sonnenschein und ausreichend Regen. Die Berge der Sierra de Cantabria schützen die Gegend vor den rauen Wetterbedingungen der Bucht von Biskaya. Diese günstige Klima-Kombination ermöglicht es, dass die mehr als 200 Weinberge einen der qualitativ hochwertigsten Traditionsweine hervorbringen, der sich durch seinen einzigartigen Charakter von den bekannten Riojas aus den Nachbarregionen Rioja Alta und Rioja Baja abhebt.

Die Region Rioja Alavesa ist atemberaubend schön. Das 12.000 Hektar große Weinanbaugebiet ist in zahlreiche kleine Parzellen unterteilt, die größtenteils nach Süden ausgerichtet sind. Der hell ockerfarbene, lehm- und kalkhaltige Boden ist Reihe um Reihe mit Wein bepflanzt.

Viele Kellereien der Region haben eine stolze, lange Familientradition, die im hiesigen Alltag eine wichtige Rolle spielt. Um höchste Qualität zu erreichen kombinieren die Winzer traditionelle Methoden, die von Generation zu Generation weitergegeben werden, mit modernster Technologie.

TXAKOLI

Die im Norden des Baskenlandes gelegenen Hänge von Getaria und Bakio beheimaten die Weinregion Txakoli, doch auch andere Regionen wie z.B. Álava stellen ebenfalls Txakoli Weine hoher Qualität her. Die flache Gebirgskette, die Nähe des kantabrischen Meeres und ein mildes atlantisches Klima sowie maximale Sonneneinstrahlung machen Txakoli Weine einzigartig.

Txakoli hat eine große soziale und ökonomische Bedeutung für die einheimische Bevölkerung.

Sein Anbau und die Produktion haben entscheidenden Einfluss auf die hervorragende Entwicklung der Nahrungs- und Getränkeindustrie. Die Produktion und der Konsum von Txakoli gingen gegen Ende des 19. Jahrhunderts dramatisch zurück. Durch Bemühungen der Vereinigung der Txakoli Winzer und der Baskischen Regierung konnte in den letzten Jahren jedoch ein enormer Aufschwung verzeichnet werden. Ziel der Maßnahmen ist es, das einzigartige Erbe und die traditionellen Anbaumethoden der Region Txakoli zu erhalten und die Qualitätsweine sowohl auf dem spanischen als auch auf dem internationalen Markt zu etablieren.

RIOJA ALAVESA

Rioja Alavesa region is located in the south of Spain's striking Basque country, bordering the stunning Sierra de Cantabria mountain range to the north and the Autonomous Community of La Rioja to the south.

With its Atlantic-Mediterranean microclimate, Rioja Alavesa region guarantees plentiful sunshine, sufficient rainfall and protection from the harsh weather conditions of the Bay of Biscay from the Sierra de Cantabria mountains. This winning combination enables the region's 200+ vineyards to make some of the finest quality Old World wines, possessing unique characteristics that set them apart from the wider known Riojas produced in neighbouring Rioja Alta and Rioja Baja.

Rioja Alavesa region is breathtakingly beautiful. Its 12,000 hectares of small vineyard plots dot the magnificent countryside, with rows of vines planted in its unusual light ochre coloured chalky soil in largely south-facing sloping locations.

Many cellars in this region proudly follow a long family tradition of winemaking that plays such an important role in local life. They combine customary methods developed and adapted over the generations with modern technological advances to ensure the highest quality is achieved.

TXAKOLI

Situated in the north of the Basque country, the sea-facing hillsides of Getaria and Bakio are home to the Txakoli winemaking region, although other areas like Alava also produce high quality txakoli wines...Txakoli wines are unique to this mountainous region, with the vines cultivated on land that is sheltered from strong coastal winds and benefits from maximum exposure to sunlight thanks to its geographic location.

Txakoli wine is of great social and economic importance and a source of immense pride amongst locals who value and embrace the region's thriving food and drink industry. Production and consumption of Txakoli wines declined dramatically towards the end of the 19th century. However, it's seen a magnificent revival in recent years, largely due to the Txakoli Winemakers' Association with the support of the local Basque government. They have sought to protect the unique heritage and winemaking methods of the Txakoli region whilst promoting its quality wines to both the Spanish and overseas markets.
